

Demographics, Trends & Implications: The Future Is Here, But What Does it all mean for Boston and the US?

Carlos J. Vasquez

Boston, Ma. (March 20, 2019) - Join Conexión on Monday, March 25, 2019, at 5:30 p.m. for a lively discussion on the current and future implications of continued demographic change - for ourselves and for leadership at every level of any organization.

What does a younger, more ethnically diverse population mean for economic, social, and political life in Massachusetts and the nation?

How will businesses, schools, and civic institutions serve and be served by millennials and post-millennials?

Newly elected state representative and Conexión alumnus, Jonathan Santiago, MD, will share insights on the shifting social landscape of the city and region.

Lorna Rivera, Director of the Gastón Institute for Latino Community Development and Public Policy at UMASS Boston, will delve into newly-released research reported in Massachusetts Latino Population: 2010-2035.

Jesse Treviño, former White House speechwriter, social critic, and demographer, will illuminate the trends in play regionally and nationally, and what they imply for our economy and society.
